

NO USE, NOT EVEN CHASERS FOR RAMONA, SAYS COUNCIL.

That the city council will stick to its original position regarding the furnishing of water to the town of Ramona, set forth in resolutions passed some time ago, was indicated yesterday when a man named Jordan petitioned for water for a grocery store and barber shop which he has partly constructed in Ramona. The city officials individually expressed the opinion that if this request be granted, others that could not be denied would be received. No action was taken.—Thursday's Gazette.

Ramona, the new booze annex to Colorado City, opened Monday night in a blaze of glory, and, according to the papers, "carriages met the cars at Fourth street to carry patrons." But were the carriages on hand to haul them home after the festivities ended?—Gazette.

The press reports of the opening of Ramona were deficient in that they failed to specify number of drunks manufactured in the new town.—Gazette.

Or tell of the noise, confusion, and presence of women on that occasion.
