RAMONA ELECTION

BEING HELD TODAY

Voters Will Decide for or Against Incorporation of New Town

The election at Ramona, north of Colorado City, to decide whether the people in that locality are for or against its incorporation as a town, will be held today. The voting will take place at 315 Thornton avenue and the polls will be open from 7 o'clock this morning until 7 o'clock tonight. There are 60 people to vote. The ballots are so arranged that the voters can, with a cross, indicate whether they stand for incorporation or against it. The judges of the election will be George Geiger, Col. Robert McReynolds, H. C. Thompson, J. Abbey and Emil Beck.

Indications were last night that the vote today will be overwhelmingly in favor of the incorporation.

The move to incorporate Ramona, talked of for several years, came to a head last spring after Colorado City was voted dry. The moving of houses into the locality was begun, but before the incorporation proceedings had been started, the city of Colorado City filed papers in the county court to annex so much territory in that neighborhood that only a few chicken ranches would be left for Ramona. This was intended to block the formation of the town, but before beginning any defense against the proceedings, the other side filed petitions for the incorporation. The election to determine the sentiment of the people of the locality was determined on later. Subsequently, on the last day on which this could be done, Attorney S. H. Kinsley, representing the people who are seeking to incorporate the town, began an attack in the county court in various ways on Colorado City's petition for annexation.

The effect of the two suits on each other is as yet undetermined. Because of this, and because of the general interest in the situation throughout the Pikes Peak region, the election today will be watched closely.

AMMONS TRYING

AVERT COAL

Situation Looks Brighter Says Brake, Governor's Special Envoy

TRINIDAD, Colo., Aug. 20.—That a strike in the southern fields may be averted have tonight by reports from Trinidad. Steps have been taken by officials in an effort to end the controversy now being waged between representatives of the United Miners union and the coal owners of district No. 15. State Labor Commissioner Edwin V. Brake, and miner Ammons, declared that "Progress is being made. Situation looks much brighter."

The efforts of the mediator, it is believed, are being made in an effort to induce the owners to agree to an "open shop" if it can be done, the hope is expressed that the officials of the United Miners will agree to yield to the owners for recognition.

Commissioner Brake is keeping Governor Ammons closely advised of the situation and was in conference this afternoon with representatives of district No. 16, U. M. W.

Frank J. Hays, national president of the U. M. W., insists that a strike will be called unless recognition is granted, but does not favor the walkout order.

Routine business occupied the attention of the delegates at the sessions of the Colorado State Association of Labor today, and recognition of the mine workers' unions were not mentioned on the floor of the convention.

A resolution urging the repeal of the "blue laws" with Sunday amusements and sales of liquor was referred for further action.

The report also endorsed the plan being made to better working conditions of railway carmen, the establishment of the "board system" in the Cripple Creek district, and the appointment of a commission to investigate the educational system. It also urged organization of picture operators and indicated a strike of brick workers in
