Proofread/revise while commenting on:

- Sentence structure (Are all sentences written in active tense? Are all sentences short, simple, and coherent for the piece's readers?)
Yes sentences are short and coherent. Transitions are needed.
- Structure of paragraphs (topic sentence, support, conclusion sentence, etc.).
Very smooth; vivid details to support how you felt emotionally.
- Thesis (Does the thesis adhere to the paper topic? Is the thesis interesting? Is it vague and confusing? Is it the constant focus throughout the writer's piece?)
Thesis not needed
- Logic behind ideas (Do all ideas adhere to paper topic? Is a flow woven throughout the order of their presentation? Are quotations from essay included? Are ideas concrete examples from the essay or inferences from the writer?)
Yes
- Grammar and diction (Punctuation coherent? Are verb tenses appropriate? Is the language of the essay tight and succinct? Is your piece's tone deliberate?)
Yes
- Transitions (Are transitions evident in paragraph and essay development?)
Needs to be worked on
- Vagueness (Can any substandard language and needless self-references be eliminated [i.e. "that", "more", "according to my opinion", "I believe", etc.]? Are all pronouns clear references to a near-by antecedent?)
Yes
