

What: Cornercopia: U of M Student Organic Farm, A certified organic farm, "student-driven," on the St. Paul campus of the U of M.

Students can be involved through U of M courses, volunteering, internships, etc.

Keywords: Agricultural practices > Organic, Agricultural practices > Local food

When/Where: 2004-present
St. Paul campus, University of MN

Who: Affiliated with the Minnesota Institute for Sustainable Agriculture (MISA). Advisors from Horticulture, Agronomy and Plant Genetics, Applied Economics, Animal Science and Extension.

Why: They are an easily accessible resource when it comes (organic) farming, with possibilities for hands-on learning. They sell at farmers' markets, and to the U of M's dining services, which is their biggest customer.

How: They have a blog at <http://cornercopiafarm.blogspot.com/> with lots of background information but also updates on what they're currently doing on the farm.
