

What: Smashing Hunger; Squashing Poverty with Keith McHenry

Keywords: Food system > Economic feasibility, Food justice > Food security, Social collaborations > Community

When/Where: 11/22/2013
Institute for Advanced Study, UMN

Who: Keith McHenry is a co-founder of Food Not Bombs, an NGO that works to secure food resources while protesting exploitative political and economic forces. Food Not Bombs estimates that it operates over 1,000 chapters in 60 countries, each of which provides

Why: Keith discusses how / why he and other co-founders started Food Not Bombs in 1980. He explains the role the FNB continues to play in various broader social movements addressing the abuses of capitalism.

How: Keith represents a subversive ideology shared by thousands of FNB members across the globe. He explains why the values of FNB are crucial to securing equality and peace in today's neoliberal global environment.

A local chapter of FNB distributes weekly meals in the Seward neighborhood. FNB continues to work with a number of food retailers and progressive social movements throughout the country.