

JULIANNA LOZADA

julianne was originally from santa clarita but she is currently living in france because of college. she attends science po in france and is doing a dual degree program with columbia university in new york.

It wasn't until her sophomore year of high school did she decide that medicine wasn't her path and that she had a passion in social activism. she spent a lot of her time watching other community leaders and activists to form her own opinion and voice.
