

Bulletin Summary of our digital humanity
project

HELLO!

Throughout this bulletin you will get an overview of our project and to refresh your mind at the end of everything you learn through our exhibition

- Entry quiz
- Themes: fulfillment, escapism, individualism, collectivism
- Our setting: things we place in our setting and why
- Mini essays
- Exit quiz

More information about our quizzes.

In the beginning, we have a entry quiz to test your knowledge on Between the Acts by Virginia Woolf. Once you are done looking at looking our exhibition, we have an exit quiz to test your knowledge on how much you learn after going through our exhibition.

The questions we ask are not difficult and are there to educate those who are not familiar with Virginia Woolf's work and her book Between the Acts.

The themes of fulfillment and escapism

- Fulfillment: Every character seems to be searching for something more. The first example is Isa and Gilles and how unhappy they both are in their marriage. Isa seems to be wanting more than the marriage she is in by fantasizing about men but not acting on it. Meanwhile Miss La Trobe is searching for recognition of her play and she wants to direct a perfect play.
  - escapism: Every character attempts to live in an ignorant bliss as they continue life "as normal" as though there wasn't a threat of world war happening over their heads. They chose to escape from this reality by indulging in theatre.

- Individualism: Every character in the book seems to be individualistic in regards that they keep to themselves and don't socialize with those around them.
  - Collectivism: The only time we seem them come together as a group/society is when Mrs. Trobe hostess the pageant each summer.

individualism
collectivism

Setting

- We added airplane and farm animal noises to our setting to show how noisy and busy it sounded during the play. Yet the characters were too lost in their own reality to realize it.

- We also added a sketch of what we think the characters in the play would have dressed like to help visualize.
  - Included two mini essay:
    - (1) The effects on War: individualism/Collectivism
    - (2) Mirrors and self-reflection

- Also included a short video talking about Virginia Woolf and why we should read her work.

Thank you!

Hope you enjoyed our exhibition
