

Slavic Studies

A Guide to Bibliographies,
Encyclopedias, and Handbooks

Volume 2

Compiled and Edited by

Murlin Croucher

Slavic Studies

A Guide to Bibliographies,
Encyclopedias, and Handbooks

Volume 2

Compiled and Edited by

Murlin Croucher

SR Scholarly Resources Inc.
Wilmington, Delaware

Q.016.947

SL 16

v.2

General Slavic Ref
(SLAVIC)

ABOUT THE EDITOR

Murlin Croucher studied at the Eastman School of Music, the University of Rochester, the University of Chicago, Université de Montréal, the University of Utah, the Army Language School at Monterey, the National Security Agency, the Sorbonne, Harvard, and Arizona State University, from which he finally received a bachelor of arts degree. Afterward he stayed long enough at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill to earn a master of arts in Slavics and a masters in library science.

He was Slavic cataloger and bibliographer at the University of North Carolina Library for ten years and is presently Slavic studies area specialist at Indiana University. During his stay at Indiana, he has made several trips to Eastern Europe and Russia to purchase materials, establish library exchanges, and prepare this handbook. Previously he worked as a compiler for the MLA bibliography, taught Russian and Czech at the University of North Carolina, taught Slavic bibliography at Indiana University, translated several articles from Russian, and coauthored a book on the history of Czech publishing. He has participated in numerous Slavic conferences.

Slavic

TABLE OF SECTIONS

Acknowledgments, ix
Introduction, xi

Volume One

Area Studies

Table of Contents, 1
Bibliography, 5

Eastern Europe and the Balkans

Table of Contents, 43
Bibliography, 45

Bulgaria

Table of Contents, 61
Bibliography, 69

Czechoslovakia

Table of Contents, 125
Bibliography, 139

Poland

Table of Contents, 257
Bibliography, 269

Volume Two

Soviet Union

Table of Contents, 361
Bibliography, 403

Former Yugoslavia

Table of Contents, 733
Bibliography, 747

General References

Table of Contents, 853
Bibliography, 855

Author Index, 863

Title Index, 895

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Many people have contributed to the preparation of this work. First to be mentioned is Dr. Robert Byrnes, whose belief in the importance of this bibliography is greatly appreciated. Student assistants brought many bibliographies to my attention and helped me find hundreds of these volumes. In particular, Chris Meyer accomplished a good deal of the retyping when the database for this bibliography was changed. When I was disheartened with the project, he gave me the courage to continue, and his constant challenging of the classification system has resulted in the precise subject listing now in use.

I am indebted to the library at Indiana University, which allowed me to take a sabbatical to work on the project, and to the Indiana Library Association, whose grant helped to finance its production. I am also most thankful to the Wilson Institute in Washington, DC, for giving me a fellowship to work at the Library of Congress; the three weeks that it provided were invaluable.

In addition, International Programs gave me a short-term grant to work in the libraries of Zagreb and Ljubljana. Djurdjica Vukoić, at the Zagreb National Library, Charles Jelavich, and Henry Cooper proofread the Yugoslav section, and librarians at the Národní knihovna offered excellent information concerning Czech publications. The work of Ann Aydelotte, who proofread the bibliography in its entirety, is also greatly appreciated.

Thanks must be extended to the University of Illinois for giving me the opportunity to work on this project during the Summer Slavic Workshop it hosts for scholars who wish to use its library facilities. In like manner I thank the Oxford University Library and the Bavarian State Library for the use of their magnificent Slavic reading rooms, and Gerhard Seewann for the use of his highly specialized library of Balkan studies at the Südost-Institut. Dr. Seewann is undoubtedly one of the finest bibliographer-scholars for Hungarian and Balkan studies. My appreciation also goes to Georges and Boris Delorme for providing many of these bibliographies during their wonderful book days when operating the famous Les Livres Etrangers.

The final dedication goes to Fred Clark, a friend who sustained my constant complaints, and to three intellectual pugs.